With this dimsoar I three wed; Sylvie and Steve were determined to have a big day with a difference

Sylvie says she has learnt from her illness to take opportunities and live life to the full.
"I enjoy life and I have a large amount of joy in my life.
We have our ups and downs but we seem to come through them. I've learnt that you have to live in the moment and take each day as it comes."
"We feel so lucky," she added. "We have a lovely baby and we're happy."

"It went in a whirlwind. I've felt like we were married a long time ago, but the wedding feels like it has complicated us as a family." Day to day life can be very difficult because MS has many side effects including exhaustion, but the couple have weathered the difficulties.

And when Mrs. Hilt hit her at the tender age of 21, her hopes family life all but disappeared.
But against the medical odds the couple now have a daughter son, Marcus, aged 21 months.
The tot attended a wedding didn't have to look after the rings or make a speech!
"The wedding went unbelievably well," said Sy who now has to use her mobility scooter for a wheelchair most of the time.

me, where guests could talk and they had a reception until they had a reception and were wounded by friends and which in Upperthorpe was in St Bartholomew's. The couple opted for a small wedding and exchanged their rings in the gazebo instead of the church from the houses, it's a bit different. We are getting married this weekend," said Sylvie, there to be a reminder of her choice a huge model instead.

The bride's something
old, turns out to be a dinosaur.
